

Total car cost per month

- The average cost of car ownership can vary by up to £296 per month between the most expensive and cheapest of the 24 European countries surveyed
- Depreciation costs (37%) are the largest expense related to car ownership, followed by road tax and VAT (20%)
- At £598 per month, car owners in the Netherlands pay the most to drive a diesel car, and at £317 per month Hungarians pay the least
- The UK is the seventh cheapest country for driving a diesel car at £374 per month
- The UK is the eighth cheapest country for driving a petrol car at £396 per month
- Service, maintenance and repair costs second cheapest for UK across 24 countries surveyed
- Norway is the most expensive country for driving a petrol car at £609, while Hungary is the cheapest at £313 per month

* In Russia diesel cars are not common. That is why the cost of driving a diesel car in Russia has not been researched.